When we only had one year of conviction data but decades of exoneration data, it means that there are more exoneration cases compared to crime cases.
Because this is not compatible, we will overestimate the probability of exonerations based on crimes.
It will be more accurate if we use decades of conviction data instead of one year data